

LINKS TO TREATIES, AGREEMENTS ETC. INVOLVING THE UNITED KINGDOM ABOUT POSTAL SERVICES AVAILABLE FREE ON THE INTERNET.

with a few other related documents.

By John Copeland

Edition 16.12.2020

The links shown are either to the start of the book or other item containing the document or to the location which contains the start of the document itself.

More than one link may be shown, (although once one link has been found, others have not been deliberately looked for) as defects in one copy may not appear in another, the language(s) used may differ and, even if the same copy of an item has been used to provide scans for the different providers, the formats available or search results may differ.

Experience of using internet links shows that these can easily disappear. Most of those listed however are from organisations who are unlikely to cease to exist, although there is always a risk of a change in storage arrangements resulting in the substitution or deletion of links (e.g. with the Foreign Office in 2018) or a change of policy regarding provision of documents.

The form in which documents can be viewed varies, with some providers only providing one option and others a choice. Where a text option is supplied, this is usually produced by optical character recognition (OCR) and the quality of the copy produced can be poor.

If a website has a search facility this usually utilises OCR, so a negative result does not automatically mean that the term searched does not appear in the item.

How easily a document can be read may depend on the browser used. For instance, in July 2017 the Bodleian Library's pdf's were most easily read using Chrome rather than Firefox or Edge.

It is assumed that the works are out of copyright or the providers have obtained any necessary licence, although no guarantee is given and any comments by the provider may well be subject to copyright. Some providers purport to grant a licence regarding use of the original documents but, if the documents are out of copyright, this may well be irrelevant.

Many texts are available via the Internet Archive, Hathi Trust, Google Books and BNF Gallica. As far as Hathi Trust and Google Books are concerned, they did not provide access automatically to non-US IP addresses to publications published 140 years or less ago because of copyright worries but in 2020 seemed to become more relaxed. For US IP addresses, they use the period of 95 years but links to items only available in the United States are not included in these lists. The Internet Archive and Gallica seem more relaxed.

For treaties from 1920, members of the League of Nations, and subsequently the United Nations, were supposed to register treaties involving them with the relevant body, who were supposed to publish them. The United Nations have arranged for copies of various treaties to be accessible on the Internet and the World Legal Information Institute (WorldLII) also provides access to the English texts. The link to the document via WorldLII is provided and, in some cases, the link to the volume with a note of the initial page number or to a pdf of the document provided by the United Nations.

Some of the links are to treaty collections including volumes in the British and Foreign State Papers, Hertslet's Commercial Treaties: A Collection of Treaties and Conventions, Between Great Britain and Foreign Powers, and... ("Hertslet"), and those published for treaties involving Austria, Belgium, France, Italy, Netherlands, Sweden, and the United States.

If France Diplomatie is mentioned, it does not seem possible to link directly to the document but instead its search facility has to be used. (https://basedoc.diplomatie.gouv.fr/exl-php/recherche/mae_internet_traites).

The listing does not include agreements relating to postal or money orders, diplomatic bags or telecommunications nor incidental provisions in agreements about railways or air transport.

The listing may include some general treaties which include postally related provisions.

The listing may also include brief details of some treaties for which links have not been traced but reference to which has been found in what should be reliable sources.

For the most part the listing uses modern country names and the modern country listing includes parts which were formerly separate countries

Treaties etc for which the United Kingdom is only acting on behalf of a colony are not normally included in the list for the United Kingdom.

If you find a link does not work or spot an error please email internetlinklists@btinternet.com with details.
